

Subscribe

Enter your email address to subscribe to our mailing list.

Email:

Watch & Read

Watch Aljazeera program (Part I & Part II) about Ramzy Baroud's latest book: My Father Was a Freedom Fighter: Gaza's Untold Story, now a available at Amazon, Amazon UK, Barnes & Noble and Pluto. Learn More. Watch a short video in English or Arabic.

Views & Reviews

Robin Yassin-Kassab
Refusal to Surrender

Gilad Atzmon
More Than a Book, It's a Masterpiece

Jim Miles
Baroud's 'Freedom Fighter' an Icon

Sally Bland
A Culture of Resistance

Nicola Jones
My Land, My Rights, My Freedoms

Deepak Tripathi
My Father Was A Freedom Fighter

Ludwig Watzal
Surrender to Injustice Not an Option

Articles

- Ali Younes
- Time Square Bomber, Sleeping Cell or a Time Bomb?
- George S. Hishmeh

Articles

Articles

10:38 04/06/2010

Why There Are No 'Israelis' in the Jewish State

Citizens classed as Jewish or Arab nationals.

By Jonathan Cook - Nazareth

A group of Jews and Arabs are fighting in the Israeli courts to be recognised as 'Israelis', a nationality currently denied them, in a case that officials fear may threaten the country's self-declared status as a Jewish state.

Israel refused to recognise an Israeli nationality at the country's establishment in 1948, making an unusual distinction between "citizenship" and "nationality". Although all Israelis qualify as "citizens of Israel", the state is defined as belonging to the "Jewish nation", meaning not only the 5.6 million Israeli Jews but also more than seven million Jews in the diaspora.

Critics say the special status of Jewish nationality has been a way to undermine the citizenship rights of non-Jews in Israel, especially the fifth of the population who are Arab. Some 30 laws in Israel specifically privilege Jews, including in the areas of immigration rights, naturalisation, access to land and employment.

Arab leaders have also long complained that indications of "Arab" nationality on ID cards make it easy for police and government officials to target Arab citizens for harsher treatment.

The interior ministry has adopted more than 130 possible nationalities for Israeli citizens, most of them defined in religious or ethnic terms, with "Jewish" and "Arab" being the main categories.

The group's legal case is being heard by the supreme court after a district judge rejected their petition two years ago, backing the state's position that there is no Israeli nation.

The head of the campaign for Israeli nationality, Uzi Ornan, a retired linguistics professor, said: "It is absurd that Israel, which recognises dozens of different nationalities, refuses to recognise the one nationality it is supposed to represent."

Featured Articles

Stephen Lendman

- Palestinian Refugees and Internally Displaced Persons

Gilad Atzmon

- Not Much Time Remains for Israel - A Film Review

Ramzy Baroud

- On Goldstone's Bar Mitzvah and Finkelstein's Book

Iqbal Jassat

- Wiesenthal's PR Exercise to Counter 'Anti-Israel Lies'

Franklin Lamb

- Ending the Hypocrisy of Lebanon's 'Voice for Palestine'

More

News

- Israel Detains 33 Palestinian Civilians
- Palestinians Commemorate Nakba
- Israelis Accountable for Mosque Fire
- Israeli Arabs Ban Settlement Products
- Israelis Attack Apartheid Wall Protesters
- US Envoy Renews Push for 'Peace' Talks
- Israeli Police Injure 9 Palestinians
- Brits Are Bashing Israel, Envoy Says
- IAEA Presses Israel to Sign NPT
- PLO Urges Fair Framework for Talks
- Turkey Slams Israel's Aggressive Policy
- Israel Cracks Down on Muslim Leaders

More

Image Gallery

Nakba Murals

More

- Proximity Talks: Turning the Other Cheek

Stephen Lendman

- Soldier Committed Abuse Against Palestinian Detainees

Stuart Littlewood

- UK General Election: Shhh ... Don't Mention Israeli Occupation

Jonathan Cook

- Israel's Stasi Watch over Imams

Rifat Audeh

- Freedom Flotilla to Gaza: Rising to the Occasion

Iqbal Jassat

- South Africa Must End Relations with Apartheid Israel

Dan Lieberman

- Listen to Affected Voices and We Will Have Middle East Peace

Ludwig Watzal

- Surrender to Injustice Never an Option: A Gaza Story

James Gundun

- Countdown to Israel-Palestinian Impact

Uri Avnery

- A Cloud over Jerusalem

Stephen Lendman

- EU MPs and Ministers Assess Gaza Today

Stuart Littlewood

- Archbishop's Silence over Israeli Bullying

Vivian Tabar

- Insulting the Memory of an Anti-Apartheid Activist

Stephen Lendman

- National Public Radio's Pro-Israeli Bias

More

The government opposes the case, claiming that the campaign's real goal is to "undermine the state's infrastructure" -- a presumed reference to laws and official institutions that ensure Jewish citizens enjoy a privileged status in Israel.

Mr Ornan, 86, said that denying a common Israeli nationality was the linchpin of state-sanctioned discrimination against the Arab population.

"There are even two laws -- the Law of Return for Jews and the Citizenship Law for Arabs -- that determine how you belong to the state," he said. "What kind of democracy divides its citizens into two kinds?"

Yoel Harshefi, a lawyer supporting Mr Ornan, said the interior ministry had resorted to creating national groups with no legal recognition outside Israel, such as "Arab" or "unknown", to avoid recognising an Israeli nationality.

In official documents most Israelis are classified as "Jewish" or "Arab", but immigrants whose status as Jews is questioned by the Israeli rabbinate, including more than 300,000 arrivals from the former Soviet Union, are typically registered according to their country of origin.

"Imagine the uproar in Jewish communities in the United States, Britain or France, if the authorities there tried to classify their citizens as "Jewish" or "Christian"," said Mr Ornan.

The professor, who lives close to Haifa, launched his legal action after the interior ministry refused to change his nationality to "Israeli" in 2000. An online petition declaring "I am an Israeli" has attracted several thousand signatures.

Mr Ornan has been joined in his action by 20 other public figures, including former government minister Shulamit Aloni. Several members have been registered with unusual nationalities such as "Russian", "Buddhist", "Georgian" and "Burmese".

Two Arabs are party to the case, including Adel Kadaan, who courted controversy in the 1990s by waging a lengthy legal action to be allowed to live in one of several hundred communities in Israel open only to Jews.

Uri Avnery, a peace activist and former member of the parliament, said the current nationality system gave Jews living abroad a far greater stake in Israel than its 1.3 million Arab citizens.

"The State of Israel cannot recognise an 'Israeli' nation because it is the state of the 'Jewish' nation ... it belongs to the Jews of Brooklyn, Budapest and Buenos Aires, even though these consider themselves as belonging to the American, Hungarian or Argentine nations."

International Zionist organisations representing the diaspora, such as the Jewish National Fund and the Jewish Agency, are given in Israeli law a special, quasi-governmental role, especially in relation to immigration and control over large areas of Israeli territory for the settlement of Jews only.

Mr Ornan said the lack of a common nationality violated Israel's Declaration of Independence, which says the state will "uphold the full social and political equality of all its citizens, without distinction of religion, race or sex".

Indications of nationality on ID cards carried by Israelis made it easy for officials to discriminate against Arab citizens, he added.

The government has countered that the nationality section on ID cards was phased out from 2000 -- after the interior ministry, which was run by a religious party at the time, objected to a court order requiring it to identify non-Orthodox Jews as "Jewish" on the cards.

However, Mr Ornan said any official could instantly tell if he was looking at the card of a Jew or Arab because the date of birth on the IDs of Jews was given according to the Hebrew calendar. In addition, the ID of an Arab, unlike a Jew, included the grandfather's name.

"Flash your ID card and whatever government clerk is sitting across from you immediately knows which 'clan' you belong to, and can refer you to those best suited to 'handle your kind'," Mr Ornan said.

The distinction between Jewish and Arab nationalities is also shown on interior ministry records used to make important decisions about personal status issues such as marriage, divorce and death, which are dealt with on entirely sectarian terms.

Only Israelis from the same religious group, for example, are allowed to marry inside Israel - otherwise they are forced to wed abroad -- and cemeteries are separated according to religious belonging.

Art

Sleep in 'Peace'

More

Links

- JUSTmedia: Gaza's Only Zoo is Up for Sale
- JUSTmedia: Gunfire, Clashes Near Gaza Border
- JUSTmedia: Aid Flotilla to Gaza
- JUSTmedia: Gazans Kickstart Economy
- JUSTmedia: Shooting Bianca
- JUSTmedia: Smugglers Stock Gaza Prison
- JUSTmedia: Ban Ki-moon Speaks to Al Jazeera
- JUSTmedia: Gaza Boat Convoy Interview
- JUSTmedia: US Public Opinion Shifts on Israel
- JUSTmedia: Is The U.S. Incapable Of Standing Up To Israel? pt.2
- JUSTmedia: Is The U.S. Incapable Of Standing Up To Israel? pt.1
- JUSTmedia: Aljazeera: Gaza's Untold Story I

More

Keep Us On The Job

Noam Chomsky: "The Palestine Chronicle has been an invaluable source of information and analysis about Palestine and related issues, drawing from a wide range of sources, including many that are otherwise inaccessible to the concerned public. An independent voice, it has been trustworthy and reliable. It is now entering its 11th year, and continues to be funded completely by readers. I hope that you will contribute to helping this unique publication to flourish." Click Here to

My Father Was a Freedom Fighter, by Ramzy Baroud

"It is more than a book, it is a masterpiece. In between sobbing and laughter we come to intimately grasp the depth of the Palestinian misery. It is Palestino-centric in every possible good sense. Maybe one of the saddest books ever written." -- Gilad Atzmon.

Book available at: Amazon, Amazon UK, Barnes and Nobles and Pluto. Learn More. Watch Aljazeera program about the book. Also watch short video: English or Arabic

Support The Palestine Chronicle.

Some of those who have joined the campaign complain that it has damaged their business interests. One Druze member, Carmel Wahaba, said he had lost the chance to establish an import-export company in France because officials there refused to accept documents stating his nationality as "Druze" rather than "Israeli".

The group also said it hoped to expose a verbal sleight of hand that intentionally mistranslates the Hebrew term "Israeli citizenship" on the country's passports as "Israeli nationality" in English to avoid problems with foreign border officials.

B Michael, a commentator for Yedioth Aharonoth, Israel's most popular newspaper, has observed: "We are all Israeli nationals -- but only abroad."

The campaign, however, is likely to face an uphill struggle in the courts.

A similar legal suit brought by a Tel Aviv psychologist, George Tamrin, failed in 1970. Shimon Agranat, head of the supreme court at the time, ruled: "There is no Israeli nation separate from the Jewish people. ... The Jewish people is composed not only of those residing in Israel but also of diaspora Jewries."

That view was echoed by the district court in 2008 when it heard Mr Ornan's case.

The judges in the supreme court, which held the first appeal hearing last month, indicated that they too were likely to be unsympathetic. Justice Uzi Fogelman said: "The question is whether or not the court is the right place to solve this problem."

- Jonathan Cook is a writer and journalist based in Nazareth, Israel. His latest books are "Israel and the Clash of Civilisations: Iraq, Iran and the Plan to Remake the Middle East" (Pluto Press) and "Disappearing Palestine: Israel's Experiments in Human Despair" (Zed Books). He contributed this article to PalestineChronicle.com. Visit: www.jkcook.net. (A version of this article originally appeared in The National, www.thenational.ae, published in Abu Dhabi.)

If you like this article, please consider making a contribution to the Palestine Chronicle.